About project

Every modern company has the ambition to offer its employees a pleasant and motivating working environment. Livesport's offices are a great example of this, with their unique design with a sporting twist. The company's management had a clear brief, namely separate offices, shared space, soft surfaces and a neutral colour scheme for focused work. The architects from Studio Reaktor were entrusted with this daunting task, whose design stands out for both its attractiveness and the functional layout of the working environment and its clear philosophy of capturing movement.

The architects chose our Flumo100-S luminaires, which, with their unique flexibility, managed to accurately replicate the running track motif and, together with the other luminaires (Vali80-T, Ture and Lipo60), enhance the essence of the company's focus and the modern design of the environment. The architects had clear ideas and we wanted to support their precision, so we supplied the luminaires with black instead of transparent wires at their request.

We're always happy with working with Habartline - they have great customer service, are caring and can respond flexibly. So we trusted their recommendation of Hally's fixtures and it turned out to be the right decision. The Flumo and Lipo luminaires perfectly illustrated our idea of the intended space and both we and the client are happy with the result.
